Working field: The responsibility of the job primarily includes teaching and research in the department. Theoretical and design-related teaching is to be provided in the bachelor's and master's degree programmes of Landscape Architecture and in the master's degree programme Urban Design. A special focus lies in examining space production processes, investigating human-nature-space relationships and in developing and communicating design methods for approaching the problems connected to the Anthropocene at different scales.

Requirements:

- successfully completed university degree (Diplom, Master or equivalent) in landscape architecture, landscape planning or comparable field of study
- knowledge of urban/landscape architectural design
- ability to handle relevant software (MS Office, Adobe Suite, CAD programs)
- sufficient language proficiency to teach classes in both German and English is expected experience and knowledge in the following areas is desired:

- familiarity with the above core topics
- experience in non-university design practice (e.g. in architecture and planning offices)
- in depth knowledge of design and presentation techniques
- experience in academic publication practice
- knowledge in the field of administrative tasks
